AMENDMENTS TO THE ABSTRACT

Please substitute the following paragraph(s) for the abstract now appearing in the currently filed specification:

The stop-time of a downloaded information program, such as, for example, a TV program, can be adjusted so that the program recipient's recorder can accurately record the program when the program's stop time changes. In one embodiment, the stop-time is not known at the start of the program and often (such as when the program is a sporting event) not even known until the actual end-time of the program or event. In such a situation, instructions to stop recording are sent to the recipient's recorder contemporaneously with the end-time of the program or event.